

Intisoft presents Xentric solution in Compaq Discovery Seminar

Hong Kong (December 5, 2000) Intisoft Commerce Technology Lab, one of the Asia's leading e-business software providers, will present Xentric XML Server in the Compaq Discovery Seminar dubbed "Deploy Next Generation of E-business Using XML" on 19 December 2000. Intisoft will showcase in the seminar the functionality and benefits of Xentric, which enables real-time B2B e-business and provides full integration to a variety of legacy data and ERP systems, that meets the demand of traditional companies and Internet Marketplaces.

During the seminar, Intisoft's presentation will focus on the applications of XML for e-business and mobile networking. XML has already garnered support from major technology developers, and the thrust of collaborative e-business has put XML into the driving seat. With an overview of XML, the audience can encounter its powerful features and learn how it can strengthen the operation of content management, B2B integration and mobile computing.

Xentric resolves the traditional inefficiencies and extends business relationship among traditional agents, vendors, and business partners on the Net. Xentric also facilitates the procurement process that goes beyond simple price discovery and transaction execution. It has the following benefits:

- Quick Time-to-market
- Multi-Catalogs Management
- Multi-Exchange & Negotiation Mechanism
- System
- Security and Scalability
- XML-native architecture
